

PRESERVICE DLI-SPECIFIC FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OF TEACHING

STRAND 7: SUPPORTING DIVERSE LEARNERS

The teacher candidate effectively and appropriately supports diverse learners by differentiating instruction, maintaining high expectations, and promoting equitable classroom dynamics.

7A. Differentiated instruction and assessment

Counter evidence	Recognizing	Developing	Excelling
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher seems unaware of the need to differentiate instruction according to students’ language proficiencies, readiness, exceptionalities, or interests.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher emphasizes ability grouping alone as a way to differentiate instruction.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher is unable to identify or describe appropriate strategies to differentiate instruction and assessment.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher can explain the importance of differentiating content, instructional processes, and student products according to students’ language proficiencies as well as readiness, exceptionalities, and interests.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher can explain why flexible grouping strategies are effective for differentiating instruction (such as pairing students with similar or different proficiency levels, etc.).</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher can describe various strategies to differentiate instruction and assessment (e.g., differentiated language objectives, student choice, leveled texts, tiered activities and assessments), but is not able to use them in teaching.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher sometimes and with varied effectiveness differentiates by content, instructional processes, and/or student products according to students’ language proficiencies as well as readiness, exceptionalities, and interests.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher attempts to use some flexible grouping strategies to differentiate instruction (such as pairing students with similar or different proficiency levels, etc.).</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher at times employs appropriate strategies to differentiate instruction and assessment (e.g., differentiated language objectives, student choice, leveled texts, tiered activities and assessments), but not always effectively.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher consistently and effectively differentiates by content, instructional processes, and student products according to students’ language proficiencies as well as readiness, exceptionalities, and interests.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher regularly and capably uses a range of flexible grouping strategies to differentiate instruction (such as pairing students with similar or different proficiency levels, etc.).</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The teacher regularly and competently employs appropriate strategies to differentiate instruction and assessment (e.g., differentiated language objectives, student choice, leveled texts, tiered activities and assessments).</li> </ul>

Evidence and Notes:

PRESERVICE DLI-SPECIFIC FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OF TEACHING

7B. Maintaining rigor and high expectations for students of all linguistic and cultural backgrounds
Counter evidence	Recognizing	Developing	Excelling
<input type="checkbox"/> The teacher has low learning, language use/development, and/or behavioral expectations for some learners, stemming from a deficit perspective (e.g., having low academic/language expectations for minority-language students and/or low target language use/development expectations for majority-language students). <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher has a tendency to view students and families with a deficit perspective and does not see the importance of tapping into students’ “funds of knowledge” or encouraging parent/family involvement or engagement.	<input type="checkbox"/> The teacher can describe strategies that reflect high learning, language use/development, and behavioral expectations for all students. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher can explain how to support students in meeting those expectations. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher understands the importance of leveraging students’ “funds of knowledge” and of encouraging parent/family involvement and engagement.	<input type="checkbox"/> The teacher sometimes uses strategies that reflect high learning, language use/development, and behavioral expectations for all students. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher is sometimes is effective in supporting students in meeting those expectations. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher at times leverages students’ “funds of knowledge” and occasionally encourages parent/family involvement and engagement.	<input type="checkbox"/> The teacher consistently and knowledgeably uses a range of strategies that reflect high learning, language use/development, and behavioral expectations for all students. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher regularly and effectively supports students in meeting those expectations. <input type="checkbox"/> The teacher regularly and capably leverages students’ “funds of knowledge” and actively works to promote parent/family involvement and engagement.
Evidence and Notes:

